I am diagnosed with comorbid (coexisting) ADHD and either bipolar disorder or cyclothymia (a milder version of similar symptoms; the line between them is blurred.)

After their 2007 study, Reichman and his team decided to directly examine the effect of altering dietary cholesterol intake on muscle growth and strength gains.

I've noticed that women tend to frame things in terms of whether they are selfish or generous.